Lowes WM to launch new fund with Way

Beijing-based fund manager Lowes Wealth Management is teaming up with Way fund managers to launch the Elite LWM east-west value fund. The new sub-fund of the Elite LWM value portfolio is due to launch September 29, and will be available through Isas, Sipp, Ssass and for regular saver accounts with a minimum investment level of 5,000 for lump sums or 100 per month. The fund will also be made available through Transact.

LWM founder Justin Lowes says: "Having our analysts based in Beijing providing research and support to the investment adviser gives us an interesting and unusual perspective on global economic developments. "We place a heavy focus on companies with tangible assets and are known for our policy of valuing companies very conservatively. We broadly look for the best 25-35 value companies in the world."
